1 Public Summary

This document includes the experimentation report for Berlin demonstration: The objective of the deliverable is to show how the demonstrations have been implemented.

Apart from this document readers should also refer to previous deliverables to get a general point of view:

- 45.1 : Detailed scenarios for Berlin demonstration
- 45.2 : Functional Specifications for Berlin demonstration
- 45.3: Integration report for Berlin demonstration

The document describes how the scenarios were doing and what the results are.

For the demonstration in Berlin, a specific focus on programme training aspects has been considered. Scenarios answering these threats have been defined and are briefly described.

- Scenario 1: Implementation of standard and emergency operating procedures (SOP), field level security plans and a decision making model for threat, emergency and crisis situations.
- Scenario 2: Execution of security awareness training programmes for front-line employees, passengers and top management
- Scenario 3 : Execution of training programmes for security employees
- Scenario 4: Execution of training programmes for operators in control centres
- Scenario 5: Execution of training programmes for security managers
- Scenario 6: Execution of emergency and crisis preparedness training programmes
